Panther Trackmen Win Intercollegiate Meet At Worcester

Blue and White Men Score Upset to Annex Title For First Time

FOUR CHAMPIONSHIPS SECURED BY WINNERS

Points Captured in Twelve Of Fifteen Track and Field Events

Scoring points in twelve of fifteen events and capturing four individual championships, the Middlebury track team annexed the team title for the first time in the annual Eastern Intercollegiate A. A. meet at Worcester, Mass., last Saturday.

The Panther team entered the meet as a dark horse considered to have only an outside chance to win, and its victory was a distinct upset to the so-called "experts". Even the most optimistic Middlebury predictions did not foresee the sweeping character of the Blue and White conquest.

The Panthers tallied 44 3-4 points, 13 3-4 more than the second place winners, Rhode Island State, the defending champions, who had 31 tallies. Norwich was third with 21, Tufts fourth with 17 1-2, and Worcester Tech fifth with 16 1-2. Trinity, Massachusetts State, and Connecticut State also scored points.

The individual first places were won by MacLean in the high hurdles, Prochazka in the 220, Sears in the two mile, and Cady in the broad jump. MacLean and Cady were the high scorers for Middlebury, the former taking third in the low hurdles for a total of seven, and Cady placing second in the 100 yard dash to lead with eight. The only other Blue and White runner to score in two events was Roberts, who was third in the high hurdles and fourth in the

Jean Calloway Will Play At Senior Ball

Famous Colored Orchestra Under Definite Contract To Play at Dance June 12

Jean Calloway and her twelve piece colored orchestra have been definitely engaged to play for the 1933 senior ball in the McCullough gymnasium, Monday, June 12, according to arrangements finally completed by Henry L. Newman, chairman of senior week.

Jean Calloway, one of the three famous Calloways, is a Creole girl, first discovered in the chorus of "Shuffle Along" when that hit was playing Broadway. She has starred in "Runnin' Wild" and "Sugar Hill" since that time, and opened with her own band in the Plantation club in Harlem for a protracted season.

At the time when Lew Leslie's Blackbirds were at the peak of their career, Jean was a featured artist of that organization. Critics have hailed her, since she has entered the orchestra field independently, as successfully making a name for herself as a feminine sensation equalled among the men only by her famous brother, Cab.

She has toured Paramount-Publix theatres repeatedly and is now under contract with RCA-Victor for exclusive recording rights. Jean Calloway comes to Middlebury from her latest engagement in Chicago, and is now under the management of Stanley H. Willis, Inc., of Boston.

1934 Junior Week Ends Sunday Night

Dorothy M. Wilson Crowned Queen of Junior Prom at Formal Dance Last Friday

After four days of social events and sports contests the 1934 junior week was brought to a close Sunday night.

The junior promenade was held Friday evening at the Middlebury inn. Music was furnished by Smith Ballew and his thirteen piece orchestra and 150 couples attended. Dorothy M. Wilson '34 was chosen prom queen, and her attendants were Doris R. Barnard '33, Dorothy C. Smith '34, Louise G. Fleig '35, and Marion Cole '36.

Thursday night the interfraternity variety show was staged in McCullough gymnasium. Delta Upsilon with an amusing take-off on various people well-known in Middlebury was awarded first place. Second place was won by Chi Psi, who presented a mock fraternity initiation, and Kappa Delta Rho, giving various scenes of Middlebury life, received honorable mention.

The sophomores triumphed over the freshmen Friday morning in the annual interclass rope pull. Later in the morning "Middlebury Memorabilia", three reels of movies, compiled by W. Storrs Lee, college editor, was presented at the playhouse. The movies concerned scenes and activities on campus and included pictures of mountain club hikes, hockey games, and the freshmen parade.

Fraternity breakfasts were served at the houses Saturday morning and open house dances were held in the evening. The junior tea dance took place Thursday afternoon at the inn.

A concert was given by the college band Sunday evening and activities ended with the interfraternity sing. It was decided that no decision should be made this year as to the winner of the contest.

Baseball games, tennis matches, and a track meet were also featured in the junior week program.

Kaleidoscope Distribution Begun After Chapel Today

Distribution of the 1934 Kaleidoscope, which began after chapel today, will continue today and tomorrow in Hepburn social hall. Full payment of the purchase price must be made before books will be delivered.

The first copy of the book was presented to President Moody in chapel this morning by Thomas R. Noonan, editor-in-chief.

Late delivery of the Kaleidoscope, which was originally promised for junior week, was due to unavoidable last minute delays of the printers and binders. In its present form, the yearbook has the kaleidoscope of its title for its central theme, with a semi-modernistic design in black and silver.

An unusually small number of copies has been ordered this year, and unless they are redeemed by the purchasers by June 1, they will be placed on sale at the regular price.

Three Junior Men Tapped By Senior Honorary Society

Baumgartner, DuBois, and Jocelyn Chosen for Waubanakee

MARKS OPENING OF 1934 JUNIOR WEEK

Members are Selected for Ability and Service in Activities

Three juniors were tapped last Thursday afternoon at the Waubanakee ceremony at Porter field. The new members are Louis M. Baumgartner, Charles N. DuBois, and Douglas L. Jocelyn. This was the first feature of the junior week program, and took place just before the baseball game with Vermont.

Waubanakee is a self-perpetuating senior honorary society, and the members are chosen at the end of their junior year on the basis of marked ability and faithful service in extra-curricular activities.

Baumgartner was on the soph hop committee last year and is treasurer of his class this year. He is a member of the interfraternity council and is president-elect of that organization. He has won his letter in basketball, having played on the team for three years. He was chairman of the junior week committee, and is a member of Kappa Phi Kappa, Blue Key, and Alpha Sigma Phi.

DuBois has been a member of the col-

College Ensemble Broadcasts Tonight

Allyn White '33 Will Direct Program From Burlington Ending Season's Activities

The Middlebury College ensemble under the direction of Allyn White '33 will broadcast a program of orchestral numbers over station WCAX, Burlington, tonight from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

Included in the program will be the waltz suite "Sphaeren Klaengel" of Josef Strauss, "Cydalise", a modern French composition by Pierne, the familiar "Hungarian Dance No. 5" of Brahms, and the popular composition of Sibelius, "Finlandia". This broadcast will be the final engagement for the college year, and concludes the first season of the student-managed organization.

The ensemble, nearly complete in its orchestration, consists of sixteen pieces. The group was organized with the purpose of providing pleasure for the players through playing worth-while compositions together rather than for the perfecting of numbers for program presentation. However, the ensemble has appeared in several instances during the past year, including a full concert, an afternoon musicale, assisting on choral club programs and plays, and two broadcasts.

Selection of recipients for the scholarships of $1000 which are awarded each year to ten outstanding young men from the state of Vermont was held at the college Monday and Tuesday, May 15 and 16.

The following men were awarded scholarships: Harold L. Akley, Wilmington high school; Phillip G. Brown, Lyndon institute; Burton D. Guild, Waterbury high school; Ralph F. Houston, Brattleboro high school; Armand N. La Flamme, Lyndon institute; Wendell H. Powers, Richford high school; Charles H. Sawyer, Black River academy, Ludlow; William R. William C. Ward, Spaulding high school, Barre, was appointed second alternate; Urban Jackson, Pittsford high school, third, and Carroll L. Hasseltine, Bristol high school, fourth. The appointment of the first alternate is being kept open until one of the applicants, who was prevented through illness from appearing before the committee, is recovered so that he can be considered.

The students arrived in time to see the entire college assembled at the chapel exercises Monday morning, and were then conducted on a tour of inspection of the college. They were entertained at lunch at the fraternity houses. In the afternoon they were given a scholastic aptitude test, following which they were interviewed by the committee of selection. This committee was composed of President Paul D. Moody, Ex-governor Redfield Proctor of the board of trustees, Dean Burt A. Hazeltine, and Edgar J. Wiley, director of admissions and personnel.

Dorothy Gifford is Chosen President of English Club

Dorothy Gifford '34 was elected president of the English club at a meeting last night. Other officers elected at the same time were Emery T. Hutchins '34, vice-president; and Frances M. Chaffee '35, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Gifford has been a member of the English club for the past year, and also belongs to the French and German clubs. She was a Saxonian tryout her sophomore year. She was manager of the freshman women's glee club this season, and is a member of the A Tempo club. She is Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Hutchins has been a member of the English club since last fall. He has been active in dramatics for three years, taking parts in several plays, and is a member of Wig and Pen. He was in the glee club last year. He is Chi Psi.

Miss Chaffee was recently elected to membership in the English club. She has been active in musical activities, and is assistant editor of the CAMPUS.

Charles N. DuBois Elected President Of Undergraduates

Receives Majority in First Ballot Over Competing Candidates

OTHER OFFICERS TO BE CHOSEN IN FALL

New Head Will Be General Executive of Activities In Men's College

Charles N. DuBois '34 was elected president of the undergraduate association last night at a meeting held in the gymnasium.

A majority of the votes on the first ballot gave DuBois the victory over Douglas L. Jocelyn '34, and Norman L. Melbye '34, the other candidates nominated.

As president of the organization he will be the general executive officer of all activities of the men's college. He is also automatically made chairman of the student council and a member of the student life committee.

The other officers of the association will be elected next fall by the student council from among its own members. The council is composed of the presidents of Blue Key, Waubanakee, the "M" club and the four classes and a representative from Pi Delta Epsilon, and the undergarduate president.

DuBois was editor-in-chief of the 1932 handbook, literary editor of the 1934 Kaleidoscope, is secretary of Pi Delta Epsilon and is advertising manager of the CAMPUS. For three years he has been a member of the college band and he was on the dean's list for his freshman and sophomore years. DuBois is president of the Junior class and is a member of Kappa Phi Kappa, the English club, the interfraternity council, and was tapped Blue Key and Waubanakee this year. He is Kappa Delta Rho.

Carroll Beers To Edit Freshman Handbook

Arthur H. Williams, Helen L. Lindberg, and Gertrude E. Knight Complete Staff

The staff of the 1933 freshman handbook was elected by Pi Delta Epsilon and the student government council this week. Carroll L. Beers '35 will be editor-in-chief; Arthur H. Williams '35, business manager; Helen L. Lindberg '35, associate editor; and Gertrude E. Knight '35, associate business manager.

Sponsored jointly by the journalistic fraternity and the student government association, the handbook will be published in September and sent to all students just prior to the opening of college in the fall. It contains a directory of undergraduate officers and activities, and includes in full the college regulations and the constitutions of the undergraduate and student government associations, the student council, the athletic council, and the women's athletic association.

Beers earned his freshman cross country numerals and was a member of the varsity squad in that sport last fall. He has played in the band for two years. He is assistant advertising manager of the 1935 Kaleidoscope, and was on the news staff of the CAMPUS. He is Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Williams has been varsity cheerleader for two years, and has competed

WHAT PRICE GLEE CLUB?

Eleven tiny gold charms were presented this morning in chapel to those members of the Middlebury College Glee Club who have completed two years of service. The organization has concluded its thirty-eighth annual concert season, having been heard in twelve separate programs on tour and having broadcasted four times over national radio networks. Unanimous press comments from every city where the club has presented recitals this year indicate that this has been one of the most successful seasons in the history of the college.

When an undergraduate musical organization attains such metropolitan recognition as to be placed first in a list of daily features including Lawrence Tibbett, Olga Albani, Charles Hackett, and a rendition of Gounod's "Faust", in the New York Times radio review page, it is undeniably one of the best possible advertisements for the college wherever it is heard. Nor is the praise of the nation's press critics the sole reaction to the Middlebury Glee Club, for a prolific flow of "fan mail" follows every recital.

In contrast to this enthusiastic metropolitan recognition which has consistently attended the work of the club in the past, the support of Middlebury herself, to her own organization, is deplorably below what it should be. The trinkets awarded this morning are the only external symbols granted the club for hours of concentrated rehearsal by members and directors. And the paltry, scattering attendance greeting the annual home concert is a further indictment against the college.

There has been much just criticism of the Glee Club for the programs presented both on tour and at home. It has been suggested quite fairly that the selections are too heavy and insufficiently "Middlebury" to encourage more demonstrative approval by the student body and faculty.

The Middlebury Club would do well to imitate the function filled by similar clubs at other colleges. At many institutions it is the traditional duty and privilege of the glee club to lead in the singing of college songs at rallies and general meetings. Certainly more songs than "Gamaliel Painter's Cane" deserve to be written in full four-part harmony.

By effecting a service of this nature, the Glee Club could well foster the singing of real Middlebury songs throughout the year, rather than completely ignoring them as soon as the football season has ended in the fall. Though the present condition tends to increase interest in anticipation of the first rally for the first gridiron battle on Porter Field in October, there is no reason why so much excellent college music should fall into disuse during the rest of the year. That vague and intangible state of mind known as college spirit is stimulated by just this enthusiasm for the old songs of the alma mater. The Glee Club's local service to Middlebury could readily become more effective, therefore, by an adjustment in its selection and program for the year.

All these suggestions are sound, and yet the organization in its present degree of attainment has reached a perfection in mastered productions, which is attested wholeheartedly by critics everywhere. The point remains that the Middlebury College Glee Club, judging by its season just completed, merits far more recognition and support by those on this campus than it now receives.

May next year see a club which serves the college locally as well as it does on tour, aided always by the essential cooperation of all Middlebury.

Poking About

—by Doris G. Anderson

At this time of the year the streams make it unwise to enter the caves in College Park, but in the fall, when the stream beds are dry, it is thrilling to say the least, to venture into the narrow apertures in the rocky hill there. They are all narrow at College Park, three horizontally so, and one vertically. Probably in a thousand years or so they will be large enough to offer a comfortable and pleasant shelter, but now it is hard even to wriggle through on your coat-front in the caves facing the road.

There is a passage from one of the front caves to the other, and a tight squeeze under the hill to the back entrance behind the hill. It has taken hundreds of years for that intermittent stream to dissolve out and carve its way in the jointed rock that blocked its passage. Besides that back entrance there is another, which is only a vertical slit, where the persistent waters took advantage of a large crack to work their way to the creek. It is really exciting to push into the dark recesses there, through the tortuous slit just barely large enough for a person to stand, sideways and slightly bent over. Sometimes the floor suddenly dips down or shelves dangerously and sometimes a slippery, green log appears under the dim flash of a search light. Drops of water hang from the jagged roof and your hands cling to the cold and clammy flow-stone on the sides. It is a relief to turn back, though a hardship to turn about-face, when obstructing twigs and other debris make further progress impossible.

The same process of solution of limestone hollowed out the large cave at Cobble Hill on the back road to Bristol. That cave is dry in its lofty position at the top of a precipitous slope, except for the occasional drops of water that have been trying for years to enlarge the tiny stalactites already formed. Perhaps future generations will wonder at the strange, prehistoric-looking drawings on the walls, inscribed today by college students. The cave has more than one room; the back one is entered by people of the correct size by a process of worm-like movements lengthwise through the hall-way dubbed "the needle's eye". There is a sharp left turn where the walls are very knobby, so it is necessary to start crawling on the right side. At last it admits the suffering wriggler into a round room containing as its sole piece of furniture a broad stalagmite. There is a great circular funnel overhead which has been explored but has revealed no secrets. Two little passages lead from this room, but as yet no one of the right build has appeared to search them out. After this adventure, one knows that he has never felt more like a lowly worm. There is no enjoyment now in anticipating such a feat as making a double s-turn in the round barrel-caves at another place on the hill.

The most fascinating cave around Middlebury is probably the Ethan Allen cave above Lake Dunmore. This one looks a great deal like a primitive dwelling, with its door and window openings, and is not part of the under-soil rock that forms the mountains. It has been deposited there by some strong force, maybe the glacier. The rocks round about it are pitted with round holes which show that at some time in the past the great seaway which covered this valley from the Green Mountains to the Adirondacks washed upon them year after year and left their marks. The name of the cave originated in the fact that Ethan Allen and his men hid themselves there for several days from the British soldiers.

Shreds and Patches

—by L. Judson Morhouse

Now that we've had a slight rest during Junior Week it ought to be easy to hit the books in preparation for finals. There's nothing like a lot of sleep to put you back in condition. We considered leaving this space blank in this issue and letting you write your own column, or draw pictures in it, or write a letter. But we were afraid if it should be seen it would offend everybody or else nobody would understand it, and so we'll get the same effect ourselves without putting you to the bother.

Smith Ballew and his ballews singer had the lassies and their lads quite in the holiday mood. After the singer slid over a few notes and then flashed a few smiles to different members of the orchestra, we heard some innocent remark, "Yes, but just whose girl is she?" We wonder.

Every fraternity house on the campus having been visited by everybody we hear that one group of lads is a bit burned up about having visitors dance barefooted on their well polished floors. You wouldn't do that at home even if your shoes did hurt. But then maybe we're wrong; perhaps you live in a nudist colony.

Sunburns are becoming extremely popular. Ointments and salves abound and the campus is beginning to smell like a day at the beach. To slap someone on the back is the equivalent of tweaking a tiger's tail. Then there's the slightly married couple with the sunburn on only one side of their faces.

Middlebury is Eastern Intercollegiate track champion and so maybe there is some order after all to that hurling and heaving weapons in attempts to see how close one can come to the innocent bystander. But they still ain't got no heart. Pretty mean, we calls it, leaving the manager in Keene, N. H., and making him come home on the train all alone.

Interfraternity stunts disclosed local talent we never knew we had. Some of the participants had members of the faculty so perfectly imitated that one freshman fell asleep from force of habit, and another signed seventeen names in rapid succession on a piece of paper.

Our advice to imported girls was so well received last week, that we have been considering offering advice on how to give one's pin away without having it snatched. With talks on marriages being given, and wedding vows being repeated in chapel amidst a silence so intense that a feather would have hit the floor with a loud crash, we begin to think the college is becoming marriage minded. Come to think of it, it's not a bad idea.

After riding in a car through Junior Week the collegians are having a hard time getting used to walking. Something like sailors getting their "sea legs". Who was the import that made the comment that back home chapel hill would be a mountain? We're inclined to agree.

Bicycling in the half nude to Dunmore deserves comment this week. Brawny Midd men on a tandem bicycle with chests exposed to the weather braved the stares of passing motorists. What price swimming?

The interfraternity sing was a wee bit disrupted when the clouds let go a few drops. We didn't think it could be heard that far away. And the way everyone took blankets to the band concert was very interesting. Because they never seemd to get there. How utterly puzzling!

The spring array at the first ball game disclosed the fact that we'd all better get a little more acquainted. No body could recognize nobody. It looked like a different college. 'Tis often said by the male side of the campus that if the women would smooth up for classes, the men would smooth up for classes. And that would be more like Junior Week, and that would be more like . . . oh, well, that wouldn't be college, so let it go.

And who is the senior who claims he never takes a good x-ray?

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the CAMPUS:

May I use your columns to express publicly an appreciation which I probably have never sufficiently indicated to those directly concerned. Most of us who work with other people are quite incapable of telling them how fully we appreciate their efforts; perhaps we cannot find the words of praise so readily as we can the more commonplace words of instruction.

I wish here to pay tribute to the work of those debaters with whom it has been my privilege to be associated during the past three years. Mr. Kline ended his forensic career a year ago, and Mr. Yerow and Mr. Duffield have now completed theirs. These three men have been the chief strength of our teams during this period, and I am moved to recognize two aspects of their work.

The more obvious matter is the record. These men in their three years have participated in twenty-seven victories against six defeats in intercollegiate decision debates, a percentage of victories surpassed by no other Middlebury competitive activity. I believe that I have never seen a better balanced team, and very few as able. Their largest and most prominent Metropolitan opponent, meeting them twice a year and reversing sides of the question used, has not succeeded in defeating them during these three years. And for the doubting may I say that in the long run decisions in debate are as accurately and fairly indicative of the relative merits of the two teams engaged as are those of the diamond or the gridiron or the court, where a single close decision often means the difference between victory and defeat. On the basis of the record all praise which anyone can give is due them.

But the second consideration is more important. Those of us who work with students, whether in the classroom or in extra-curriculum activities, cherish our memories, long after the high marks and the competitive records have gathered dust in the files, of the unselfishness, the cooperation, the loyalty and the friendliness that have ensured certain individuals of our affections and respect. These qualities have marked the debating work of the above mentioned men to such a degree that it has been a rare privilege to work with them, and one which I shall not forget. And above this, they have met fully the responsibility facing every team which Middlebury sends out to competition; they have met the tests of courtesy, fair play and good fellowship in a manner which can do no less than add to the reputation of Midd. That is the supreme goal.

There are two things which I would add. I regret that this year we had to debate war debt cancellation so often at home. This was the question which nearly all teams wanted, and it pleases us to meet teams whenever possible on the grounds they choose. The second thing is that I can claim no large share of credit for the work these men have done. They did the work and the debating, and theirs is the result.

PERLEY C. PERKINS.

Dr. Harris of Union Speaker at Vespers

"Saying What We Mean and Meaning What We Say" is Theme of Chapel Sermon

Dr. Erdman Harris, of Union theological seminary, New York city, spoke at vespers Sunday. He took for his subject, saying what we mean and meaning what we say, and the appreciation of the significance of the words we use.

The speaker declared that he was not talking about telling the truth. A lie, in his opinion, is a false impression. It depends on the idea or impression that the other person receives, and because of this a person can live a lie. Dr. Harris defined a Christian as a person who honestly strives to live up to Christian ideals, perhaps not always succeeding. He said, "We are inclined to call people who are insincerely creating an impression for their own advantage hypocrites."

He reminded us that we admire a person who says what he means and means what he says. Believing this typical of a Christian, he stated that this does not mean telling the whole truth at all times, as a doctor may withhold the truth from his patient to save his life.

"Everyone", said Dr. Harris, "has private thoughts, opinions, and deeds of which he is not ashamed and which he needs in this modern world. Secret affairs are not necessary and are things which a person feels he must hide to save himself or others. A Christian, in view of these ideas, is one who has privacy but not secrecy."

Dr. Harris mentioned that a gentleman is one who never offends unintentionally although it is sometimes necessary to do so purposely.

The speaker used the marriage ceremony as an example of something taken without thought of significance. Before marrying a couple he talks with them to discover their attitude toward the step they are going to make. In many cases people take it very lightly. To show the seriousness of this he quoted a passage from the ritual. Accepting such obligations without thought of their meaning is trifling with life.

Another example of the lack of appreciation of words given by Dr. Harris is the Lord's Prayer, especially the phrases "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done." It is the one thing in liturgy which binds Christianity together. "Most people," said the speaker, "rattle it off, but if prayed sincerely by every Christian in the world it might mean the return of real religion."

Modern theology is broadening our view of the will of God which Dr. Harris interprets as the desire of God for a better world. He believes that the Lord's prayer means the dedication of oneself to the best he knows under the will of God.

Lawrence and Wetherell Debating Prizes Awarded

The Edwin Winship Lawrence and the Wetherell prizes for excellence and interest in debating were presented during chapel exercises Thursday morning. Edward Yerow '33 and Thomas J. Duffield '33 received first and second respectively in both awards. Third in the Lawrence fund was divided between Jack Steele '36 and Charles A. Deedman '36.

The Edwin Winship Lawrence prize was established in the memory of George Edwin Lawrence of the class of 1867. The awards are made annually to those students who, in the judgment of the English department, show the most proficiency in debating. The prizes are $25, $15 and $10.

A permanent foundation was established in 1922 for the encouragement of debating as a memorial to Prof. Archibald D. Wetherell. It was created through the interest and cooperation of his friends and admirers. It amounts to about $1,100 and the income of that amount is awarded annually to the two men showing the greatest interest and proficiency in debating. This year the prizes amounted to $30 and $20.

Evald Olson '34 is Chosen To Head Kappa Phi Kappa

New officers of Kappa Phi Kappa for the coming year were elected at a meeting of the honorary fraternity last week. They are: Evald B. Olson '34, president; Eugene G. Embler '34, vice-president; Russell L. Root '34, secretary; Burton C. Holmes '35, historian; and Aaron A. Schefkind '34, chairman of the program committee.

The new officers expect to arrange a program of talks by many prominent educators during the coming year, and to advance education as a profession.

Richard Cushing and Elly Delfs Present Musicales

Two musicales were presented during the past week by students in music.

Richard W. Cushing '35, baritone soloist, gave a recital of vocal music Friday afternoon in Mead chapel. Mr. Cushing was accompanied by Vincent F. Sargent '34. The program was sponsored by the A Tempo club.

Elly Delfs '33 presented a program of vocal selections yesterday evening. Miss Delfs was accompanied by Julia C. Sitterley '33 and the Larsen trio. The members of the trio are Alice R. Collins '33, violin; Jean C. Wiley '35, piano, and Gordon E. Hoyt '36, cello. Miss Delfs sang selections of Italian, German, and American songs.

Three years of Sunday school attendance is the sentence imposed on students at Colorado university who are caught drinking.

They Satisfy
..all you could ask for!

Just two words...

Yes, I have heard about two words; and now and then three words—but "They Satisfy" means "To gratify fully."

Why do these two words "they satisfy" fit Chesterfields? Because Chesterfield Cigarettes are milder. Because Chesterfield Cigarettes taste better.

Chesterfield's way of blending and cross-blending fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos brings out better flavor and aroma.

Varsity Nine Leaves On Four Game Tour

Team to Meet Holy Cross, Boston University, Boston College, and Northeastern

Coach Nelson with twelve men and Assistant Manager Cushing left for Worcester yesterday for the Holy Cross contest to be played this afternoon. On the following three days the Panthers will meet Boston university, Boston college, and Northeastern university, all at Boston.

The Blue and White lineup will probably see little change from past contests. Since only twelve men are making the trip, shifts in assignments will be limited. Stefaniak is expected to pitch in the opener while McDermott is likely to be on the mound against Boston university. Barker and Stefaniak are scheduled for twirling assignments against Boston college and Northeastern. Stevenson will hold down third base and Williams is to see service at center field. The team showed considerable strength in the Norwich game Saturday and should be at the peak of its season.

The Crusaders are a powerful outfit, having recently defeated William and Mary and swamped Georgetown. In the latter contest Holy Cross fashioned eighteen hits, including five homers, to win 19-3.

Boston university boasts one of the strongest nines in the East, having recently defeated Harvard, Brown, Clark, and Upsala in four consecutive starts. Comparative scores are favorable to Middlebury in that the Terriers defeated Upsala 5-3, while the Middmen upset Upsala 4-1. Vermont succeeded in defeating B. U. 12-7 in an earlier contest. However, the Terriers will present a hard hitting combination which will be difficult to upset.

The Boston college Eagles met their first defeat at the hands of the William and Mary nine last week and succumbed to the Harvard Grads 11-3. Poor fielding and numerous infield errors were conspicious in both contests.

Northeastern also has an effective aggregation and should offer plenty of opposition. They defeated Clark recently but bowed to Tufts by a 7-0 score. Poor fielding and a not too powerful hitting ability were evidenced in these contests.

The men making the trip are: Assistant Manager Cushing, McDermott, Barker, Stefaniak, Hoehn, Sorensen, Hartrey, Stevenson, Zawistoski, Bakey, Williams, Dumas, and Ziegler.

DKE Scores Easy Victory In Intramural Track Meet

Delta Kappa Epsilon easily won the intramural track meet at Porter field last Saturday, scoring 21½ points against the 10 points of their nearest opponent, Delta Upsilon. Kappa Delta Rho took third place with 8¼ points, Sigma Phi Epsilon placing fourth with 4¼ points.

The hundred yard dash and the high jump were the high lights of the meet. Hall (KDR), Deemer (DKE), and Horton (DU) led the pack in the hundred, Hall showing a final burst of speed in the last twenty yards to break the tape a scant three feet ahead of Deemer and Horton, Deemer leading Horton by a split second.

The competion was unusually keen in the high jump event. Sweet (DKE) cleared the bar at 5 feet 8 inches to take first place, Pierce (DU) a close second at 5 feet 7 inches. Four men tied for third place at 5 feet 6 inches, Pritchard (KDR), H. MacLean (DKE), Willoughby (SPE), and Martin (DKE).

The summaries:

100 yard dash: won by Hall (KDR); Deemer (DKE), second; Horton (DU), third. Time 10.4 seconds.

120 yard low hurdles: Tie for first between Willoughby (SPE) and Sweet (DKE); Easler (CP), third. Time 15.2 seconds.

Shot put: won by Seixas (DU); Sweet (DKE), second; H. MacLean (DKE), third. Distance, 39 feet, 3½ inches.

High jump: won by Sweet (DKE); Pierce (DU), second; Pritchard (KDR), H. MacLean (DKE), Willoughby (SPE), and Martin (DKE) tied for third. Height, 5 feet, 8 inches.

Half mile relay race: won by (DKE); (KDR) second; (DU) third.

MIDDLEBURY VICTOR IN WORCESTER MEET

In winning the two-mile, Sears turned in his best time of the year on a heavy, lifeless track. His victory was accomplished in the manner of all his races. The diminutive running machine followed the pace unobtrusively until the final quarter, when he unleashed his ever-dependable "kick" and won going away by a comfortable margin. The time was 10:10.

The sprints and hurdles were run against a brisk head-wind, and the times were consequently slow. In winning the high hurdles, MacLean was clocked in 16.8. Cady was second to Rowley of Norwich, a runner who has done ten flat, in 10.4. In the 220 Middlebury amassed eight points by virtue of a first place by Prochazka and second by Montgomery. The low hurdles saw three of the four finalists wearing the Blue and White, but MacLean of Tufts, the fourth finalist, skimmed the barriers ahead of Mathewson, MacLean, and Roberts of Middlebury, who finished in that order.

In the mile D. Short captured third place behind Arnold of Rhode Island and Borden of Connecticut college. Boehm added to the Middlebury score with a second in the 440, and Hunter tallied a point by placing fourth in the 880.

The Blue and White was not as dominating in the field events as it was on the track, but it managed to gain the broad jump title when Cady cleared 20 feet 9 1-2 inches in a poor pit. In the discus Lombardy came through with a heave of 118 feet, 5 inches to take third. Lovell was third in the javelin with a throw of 172 feet 6 inches. MacKenzie added the fraction to the team score by gaining a triple tie for third in the pole vault, clearing 11 feet.

The all-around strength of the undefeated Middlebury team is demonstrated by the fact that it failed to score only in the high jump, shot put, and hammer throw. The incapacity of Captain Brown weakened the Panther in the jump and the shot.

Panther Runners To Meet Union College

Strong Opposition Expected From the Garnet Team in Encounter at Schenectady

Fresh from their E. I. C. A. A. victory of last week, the Panther trackmen will attempt to keep up their winning ways in their meet with Union college at Schenectady Saturday. Although the Blue and White aggregation is favored to keep its undefeated record clean, the Garnet is certain to provide strong opposition.

Last season Middlebury defeated the New York team 75-51, but the Garnet has been strengthened in several events, particularly the distance and middle-distance runs, and will be considerably more formidable this year.

In last season's meet the Panthers swept both sprints, but despite the fact that Prochazka, Cady, and Montgomery are going well the Union sprinters will make more trouble in Saturday's meet. The Garnet will also offer strong opposition in the hurdles, where MacLean, Roberts, and Mathewson have been having things much their own way thus far this season.

The hammer throw will not be contested in this meet, since Union does not include it in its contests, and Middlebury will not have the advantage of using Watson, who has been swinging the ball with good results. The high jump will find Union well fortified, while the Blue and White has no first-rate performer.

The Union track is an exceptionally fast one, and the close competition should be accompanied by good times in the running events. Should the Middlebury team be successful in this contest, only the Green Mountain Conference meet, to be held the following Saturday, will stand in its way to its first undefeated season in many years.

Junior Team is Victorious In Women's Hockey Series

The women's hockey season was concluded last Wednesday afternoon in a tie game between the seniors and sophomores. The juniors won the championship, making their third of the year. They have also been victorious in volley-ball and basketball.

Hockey, usually a fall sport, was postponed to this spring for the playing of the second round matches because of the unfavorable weather conditions in the fall.

A summary of all games played is as follows:

	Won	Lost	Tied
Seniors	1	1	1

The following women were selected for the All-Midd team: Lois W. Lewthwaite '33, goal; Ruth G. McNulty '36, ri; Elizabeth Spencer '33, li; Dorothy A. Major '34, cf; Helene G. Bernard '34, rw; Helen L. Lindberg '35, lw; Irene E. Bonnett '36, rh; Doris P. Tucker '35, lh; Elizabeth F. Seckerson '34, ch; Dorothy M. Wilson '34, rf; Priscilla S. Bowerman '34, lf.

The annual hockey bonfire will be held tonight.

Middlebury Wins Series Game From Norwich But Bows to Vermont Nine

The varsity baseball team, playing two state series games at Porter field as its contribution to the junior week program, lost a closely contested battle to Vermont Thursday by a 3-1 score and pounded out a 15-3 victory over Norwich on Saturday.

Vermont 3 - Middlebury 1

The Panther and Catamont, meeting for the second time this season, played a nip and tuck game with the Catamounts coming out on top for the second time. The contest Thrusday was a pitcher's battle between Barker and Layden. Both twirlers were in good form and for the first five innings neither team even threatened to score.

Palmer singled for Vermont in the first and stole second, but was left stranded there. For the next four innings the Green and Gold batsmen went down in order. In the sixth frame Delfausse, who had been inserted when Bowers received a split finger in the third, opened with a double and advanced to third on an infield out. Burns then singled, driving in the first score of the day. Palmer reached first on an error but Barker struck out the next two batters to end the inning.

Vermont scored again in the seventh when Ramon singled, reached second on a sacrifice by Macomber, and came home on a long single by Delfausse. Middlebury threatened to score for the first time in their half of the seventh. Barker and Stefaniak each batted out singles and both advanced on a wild pitch. With runners on second and third and none out Bakey hit a long fly against the fence in right field. Garrett made a great running catch and relayed the ball to Layden in the infield. The umpires ruled that the Panther runners had left second and third before the catch, and the ball was tossed to those bases completing a triple play.

Macomber reached first on an infield error in the ninth, advanced to second on a sacrifice, stole third, and scored on a single by Layden. The Panthers also scored once in the ninth to avert a shut-out. Hoehn reached first on an error, took second on an infield out and went to third on a wild pitch. Barker then rapped out his third single of the game to bring in Middlebury's only run. The next two batters went down in order to end the game.

Barker pitched a fine game for Middlebury, striking out eleven and allowing only six safeties. He led the batting with three hits in four trips to the plate. Layden also had his curves breaking well and kept seven hits well scattered. Good support pulled him out of the several tight places.

Middlebury 15 - Norwich 3

The Blue and White nine gained its first state series victory at Porter field Saturday when the Middmen overwhelmed Norwich by a 15-3 count. The Panther sluggers drove out the offerings of Washburn for eighteen hits, including three home runs. Stefaniak, the winning hurler, was invincible after the first inning and kept the game well in control.

The visitors made use of two singles, a double, and an error in the opening inning to score three runs. After the first frame Stefaniak allowed only five scattered hits and the Cadets never threatened to score.

Middlebury came back in the last of the first to score two tallies. In the third Sorensen doubled and came home on a passed ball to knot the score at three all. Stefaniak then drove the ball beyond the track in deep center for a home run and what proved to be the winning run of the game. The fifth and sixth were the big innings for the Panther batsmen. Three singles and home runs by Stevenson and Hartrey accounted for four scores in the fifth. An error and four one base blows made possible four more in the sixth. The game became a rout, with the home team hitting Washburn at will.

Stevenson, the Midd lead-off man, had a big day at the plate, getting a homer, a double, and two singles in six times at bat. Sorensen, Stefaniak, and Williams each secured three safeties to count heavily in the scoring. Stefaniak fanned ten.

Kaleidoscope Review

Some one made an original remark to the effect that experience is the best teacher. If this be so, then the Kaleidoscope editor, from those first days when a ten page issue was a triumph to these last marvels of organization, must have been forcibly convinced that there is indeed nothing new under the sun. When all values, moral and practical, are fluctuating, it is pleasant to be able to hope that the Kaleidoscope, at least, will remain unchanged. As we consult our past experience we realize that our faith in the unchanging qualities of the Kaleidoscope has been rather completely justified. We would almost be willing to bet a small sum of money on the exact format of the Junior publication as it appears from year to year.

But we are glad we did not place such a bet this year, for we would have lost heavily. This year's editorial staff has accomplished the seemingly impossible - - they have attained originality. Their originality consists, ironically enough, in having made of the Kaleidoscope a Kaleidoscope, a possibility that has been consistently overlooked, so far as we can remember. It might be said that even at its most Kaleidoscopic the Kaleidoscope cannot quite convey the hectic atmosphere of a college life where even those absolutely basic realities called grades assume only shifting values. But this is a review, not a tract on the worth of an education.

Mr. Noonan and his editorial board really deserve congratulation. No one who has not gone thru the ordeal can ever imagine the gruelling detail necessary to work of this kind. The slightest flaws can occur even when the editor is most vigilant. But in the 1934 Kaleidoscope there are no flaws, at least for our eyes.

We are rather glad that the editorial board decided to utilize a conservative color scheme in their present publication. Blue, purple, and mud color have their value in a picture gallery, but not in the year book. The modern photographs, some of them strikingly effective, lend themselves to stunning black and white pattern arrangements. The conventionalized designs introducing the various sections are the most welcome variation. The artistic efforts generally used for such a purpose betray much zeal but not the skill of Michelangelo. We are happy that not all art editors demand the impossible.

There is hardly opportunity for a display of literary genius in the various writeups - - one can but sigh and follow the beaten path. Accuracy is the only virtue in demand. A rather hasty perusal convinces us that in the main, the writers have been sufficiently virtuous.

The usual way to conclude a Kaleidoscope review is to say that the issue under discussion is the best of all Kaleidoscopes. We see no reason to desire to be original, but in being unoriginal, we can at least be truthful.

Golfers Meet Dartmouth On Hanover Course Today

The Blue and White golf team will journey to Dartmouth today to engage in its first match with the Green and White at the Hanover country club. The course, which is laid in the mountains, is long and tricky, especially for visitors.

Middlebury will probably be represented by the same men who won over Norwich and Union. Dartmouth recently beat Holy Cross by an 8-1 score.

The Dartmouth team is led by Hicks, who is the brother of Helen Hicks, national woman's champion. Hicks is seconded by Ogg, son of William Ogg, well known professional. These two men score in the low 70's, and the other members of the team average near there. All of them are noted amateurs.

The opposing team is considered one of the strongest in the east, but in spite of this fact, Middlebury should be able to make a creditable showing in this last and hardest match of the season.

Tennis Team to Complete Year With Three Matches

The Middlebury tennis team will complete its schedule this week by playing three matches, one at home and two away. Today the Panther netmen take on St. Lawrence university at the Hepburn courts. The Blue and White defeated the New Yorkers last year and hopes to repeat the victory today.

Friday the team will meet the strong U. V. M. team on the latter's courts. The junior week matches ended in a 3-3 deadlock with the Middlebury number one and two men losing both singles and doubles. If either Allen or Flagg, or both, in the doubles, can come through Friday, Vermont should meet defeat, as the Middlebury number three and four men won decisively in both singles and doubles.

Saturday will find the Panther playing St. Michael's at Winooski. The junior week match between these two teams resulted in a 9-0 defeat for the upstaters, and they should provide little opposition Saturday.

Middlebury Golf Team is Victor in Norwich Match

Middlebury's golf team easily defeated Norwich in a match played last Wednesday at the Montpelier country club, winning every match for a 6-0 score. The players were somewhat hampered by the rainy weather.

Captain Riccio and Leete were outstanding for Middlebury and the whole team showed good form. Riccio's opponent held the championship for the Montpelier course and furnished exceptionally stiff opposition.

Summaries:

Twosomes: Riccio (M) defeated Denney (N), 1 up; Pickens (M) defeated Barclay (N), 2 and 1; Leete (M) defeated Betts (N), 8 and 7; Olson (M) defeated McDermott (N), 8 and 7.

Foursomes: Pickens and Riccio (M) defeated Denney and Barclay (N), 2 and 1; Olson and Leete (M) defeated Betts and McDermott (N), 9 and 7.

DRAMA REVIEW

It was an enthusiastic and delighted audience that crowded the Playhouse on Wednesday evening at the second rendering of the play "Fashion", and witnessed one more of those excellent performances that our director of dramatics has given us the right to expect. The play deals with New York society in the year 1850. The audience laughed merrily at the absurdly elevated morality of the sentiments expressed in the lines of the play, and fairly chortled with joy at the excellence of the actor's technique. The many long speeches were delivered with admirable fluency, and the frequent changes of scene were excuted so rapidly that the audience was hardly aware of the waits.

One interesting feature of the performance was the fidelity with which the promise printed in the playbill was observed. We refer to the sentence, "The production . . . is a serious effort to reflect the acting mode without burlesque." Not a hint of farce was allowed to obtrude. Even the asides - - which were given in the manner of the old tradition with the actor leaning out toward the audience - - even they were free from that hint of mischievous insincerity which is the mark of farce.

Here one might perhaps ask how far it is possible really to "revive" an outmoded play. For though you can, by conscientious care, reproduce the acting mode, you cannot, alas, reproduce the audience that originally listened to it, that thrilled with genuine indignation or melted with pity in response to the exalted sentiment of the lines. A modern audience is bound to look for and to find, only absurdity. Most producers burlesque revivals, which is like peppering and salting what is already sufficiently seasoned. Mr. Goodreds has paid his audience a high compliment in assuming that they would prefer a true image of the past to a distorted one.

The work of the members of the cast was exceptionally even, and on a plane that raises it above such criticism as one is frequently forced to apply to amateur performances. The pleasant privilege remains of mentioning some of the outstanding merits. Mr. Yerow's portrayal of the bogus French count was a bit of perfect technique, and ranks with Mr. Butler's work in "Death Takes a Holiday" and Mr. Kingsley Smith's in "Candida". His French accent was impeccable. He was ably seconded by Miss Mountford as a French lady's maid, who played her part as convincingly as any member of the cast. Miss Lyon's portrayal of an ambitious New York society matron was intelligent and varied, while Miss West by her vivacity saved the play from any dull moments. Miss Sargent used her smile and coquettish tilt of the head in a most winning way, while Miss Wilcox by her restraint and simplicity drew a portrait that was in refreshing contrast to the atmosphere of affectation that surrounded her.

Some of the best work in the play was done by Mr. Hoyt in the role of an honest farmer. He delivered his copybook maxims with a vigor and sincerity that was most impressive. Mr. Brink played the conscience-stricken banker with his usual quiet restraint, while the roles of an aspiring young poet, a social snob, a blackmailing clerk and a negro butler were admirably taken by Messrs. Allbee, Sprague, Judge, and Gates.

Between the acts four songs of the period were sung. The French song, "Il Etait Une Bergere", sung by the Count and the French maid, was so perfectly done that it would be sure of a warm welcome on any vaudeville circuit, while that melodramatic gem, "Don't Swat Your Mother", made the house rock with laughter.

Altogether, a most enjoyable performance, and the best antidote we know for the "Depression". We congratulate our Commencement visitors on the opportunity for enjoyment that lies ahead of them, since the play will be twice repeated at that time. w.s.b.
